Antarctica, at the far end of the Earth, is around two days' travel from Ushuaia. The ever-changing polar scenery presents us with spectacular views one after another. However, this strikingly magnificent continent is facing a very real crisis. Due to the rise in temperature from global warming, the glaciers are retreating at a scale previously unthinkable on this frozen land. This visit to Antarctica will allow you to experience its awe-inspiring beauty, and also learn more about the serious implications of climate change.
